BA (Hons)

GLOBAL MANAGEMENT AND INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS

is the study of how an organisation manages its business internationally, combining global knowledge of business, culture, managerial and social practices to succeed in a competitive international market. Our BA (Hons) Global Management & International Business provides students with in-depth knowledge of core subjects, through a problem-based approach that links theoretical concepts to real work life scenarios. The BA (Hons) Global Management and International Business is validated by The Open University.

Who is this course for?

This course is open to anyone who is interested in learning about a range of management theories and practices from a variety of global perspectives. At the end of our BA (Hons) Global Management & International Business, you will be aware of global practices and contemporary theories used in managing an organisation internationally. You will be able to apply for a wide range of careers in management positions, such as marketing, HR, accounting, general administration and innovation based in sectors such as finance, education, welfare, employment services, non-profit, government, industrial relations, health and media, and many more. For students of the Faculty of Business and Management that are interested, there are placement opportunities to gain vocational experience in the workplace although these are not compulsory.
